Art Unit: 1714

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 1-12 and 16 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as anticipated by or, in the alternative, under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as obvious over Pottier-Metz et al, US Patent No. 5,162,419.

Pottier-Metz et al discloses molding compositions formulated from polycarbonate, a rubbery base graft copolymer and conventional additives, such as phosphorous flame-retardants. Exemplary rubbery base graft copolymers include ABS and EPDM. Patentee is silent as to the iron content, aspect ratio and particle shape of the talc filler, however since the filler is essentially the same as applicant's, it is believed that these properties are inherent to the talc employed. Pottier-Metz et al defines the talc by particle size and further indicates that the structure of the particles is not taken into account. The components of the patented invention are employed at amounts that overlap the presently claimed amounts. Absent a clear showing that the components of the presently claimed invention are different from those of the patented invention and that said differences provide an unexpected result, the claims are anticipated and/or obvious over Pottier-Metz et al. See col. 2, line 5 through col. 3, line 36 and col. 5, lines 11-41.

Art Unit: 1714

Claims 13-15 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Pottier-Metz et al as applied to claims 1-12 and 16 above, and further in view of Toyouchi et al, US Patent No. 5,961,915.

Toyouchi et al discloses that aromatic phosphates are excellent flame-retardants for polymer blends of PC, ABS and filler. See col. 18, line 66 through col. 21, line 45, col. 25, lines 9-31. It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time of applicant's invention to include the phosphates of Toyouchi et al into the resin compositions of Pottier-Metz et al to achieve their usual flame retarding properties. This is especially true since Pottier-Metz et al suggests that phosphorous flame-retardants may be added to the patented compositions.
